Portland, Sept. 29.—Hopgrowers throughout the Willamette valley have agreed not to sell under 15 cents. The local banks in the various hopgrowing districts have decided to stand by the growers on this proposition, and no sales under 15 cents per pound are looked for within the next 60 days.

Egg dealers who have large quantities of eggs in cold storage complain that they are making nothing this season. "Eggs cost 18 cents a dozen in the spring for cold storage purposes," said a dealer today. "The storage men charge two cents per dozen to keep them cool. Losses and recandling cost fully 1 1/2 cents, and thus the eggs stand at 21 1/2 cents per dozen. We have to sell at about 22 cents now, so where is the money in the cold storage of eggs?"
